Market Overview

United States (US) fixed income sectors generated positive returns over the fourth quarter of 2020. Encouraging vaccine developments propelled market confidence despite growing COVID-19 infections and the United Kingdom's (UK) formal exit from the European Union (EU). Most fixed income spread sectors outperformed as credit spreads tightened, the US presidential election concluded, and major central banks' policies aimed to mitigate risks. The US Treasury yield curve steepened as easy Federal Reserve (Fed) monetary policy anchored front-end yields while the prospect of additional fiscal stimulus lifted inflation expectations. The Bloomberg Barclays US Aggregate Bond Index returned 0.67% during the quarter.

Performance Summary

- The Hartford Total Return Bond Fund (I Share) outperformed the Bloomberg Barclays US Aggregate Bond Index and the Lipper Core Bond peer group average during the quarter
- Investment grade (IG) credit positioning had positive impact on relative performance. Out-of-benchmark allocations to high yield and bank loans also had a positive impact on relative results over the period.
- The Fund's allocation to securitized sectors, including commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS), non-agency residential mortgage-backed securities (RMBS), asset-backed securities (ABS), and collateralized loan obligations (CLOs) had a positive impact on performance as spreads tightened
- We implemented tactical duration* positions during the quarter, which overall had a negative impact on relative performance. Our allocation to Treasury Inflation Protected Securities (TIPS) had a positive impact on results as TIPS outperformed duration-equivalent nominal US Treasuries.
- We held select emerging markets debt (EMD) exposure, which had a positive impact on relative performance

Positioning & Outlook

- By the end of 2020, spreads across many fixed income sectors had recouped most of their widening experienced in March 2020, but we believe there are still sectors priced wide relative to our expectations for excess returns over a 1-3 year time horizon.
- We are still maintaining a moderate tilt toward higher-yielding sectors. Our pro-risk stance is driven by strong technical, accommodative monetary policy, and the prospect of an economic recovery in 2021.
- We positioned the Fund for rising inflation expectations as we continued to believe the TIPS market was underpricing inflation expectations
- We remained underweight to IG credit and maintain out-of-benchmark exposure to high yield and bank loans. The Fund maintained an out-of-benchmark allocation to select non-agency RMBS. The Fund also held senior CMBS with attractive collateral and high-quality CLOs.
- We continued to hold select exposure to EMD, focusing on countries that are better able to cope with the economic and healthcare impact of coronavirus

Effective as of the close of business on 3/29/19, Class C of the Fund closed to new investors, except as disclosed in the prospectus.

Important Risks: Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. Security prices fluctuate in value depending on general market and economic conditions and the prospects of individual companies. The Fund may allocate a portion of its assets to specialist portfolio managers, which may not work as intended. • Fixed income security risks include credit, liquidity, call, duration, event and interest-rate risk. As interest rates rise, bond prices generally fall. • The risks associated with mortgage-related and asset-backed securities as well as collateralized loan obligations (CLOs) include credit, interest-rate, prepayment, liquidity, default and extension risk. • The purchase of securities in the To-Be-Announced (TBA) market can result in additional price and counterparty risk. • Derivatives are generally more volatile and sensitive to changes in market or economic conditions than other securities; their risks include currency, leverage, liquidity, index, pricing, and counterparty risk. • Foreign investments may be more volatile and less liquid than U.S. investments and are subject to the risk of currency fluctuations and adverse political and economic developments. These risks may be greater for investments in emerging markets. • Investments in high-yield ("junk") bonds involve greater risk of price volatility, illiquidity, and default than higher-rated debt securities. • Obligations of U.S. Government agencies are supported by varying degrees of credit but are generally not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. • Restricted securities may be more difficult to sell and price than other securities.
