

US and International Markets Have Moved in Cycles

While we hope US stocks continue to perform well, history suggests that international stocks may soon have their day in the sun. Since 1975, the outperformance cycle for US vs. international stocks has lasted an average of eight years. We're currently 12.8 years into the current cycle of US outperformance based on 5-year monthly rolling returns.

US Equity vs. International Equity 5-Year Monthly Rolling Returns (1/31/75-12/31/23)

The chart shows the values of the S&P 500 Index's returns minus the MSCI World ex USA Index's returns. When the line is above 0, domestic stocks outperformed international stocks. When the line is below 0, international stocks outperformed domestic stocks.

ETFs are not mutual funds. Unlike traditional open-ended mutual funds, ETF shares are bought and sold in the secondary market through a stockbroker. ETFs trade on major stock exchanges and their prices will fluctuate throughout the day. Both ETFs and mutual funds are subject to risk and volatility.

S&P 500 Index is a market capitalization-weighted price index composed of 500 widely held common stocks.

MSCI World ex USA Index captures large and mid cap representation across developed market countries, excluding the US.

Investors should carefully consider a fund's investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses. This and other important information is contained in a fund's full prospectus and summary prospectus, which can be obtained by visiting hartfordfunds.com. Please read it carefully before investing.

Important Risks: Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. • Foreign investments may be more volatile and less liquid than US investments and are subject to the risk of currency fluctuations and adverse political, economic and regulatory developments.

These risks may be greater, and include additional risks, for investments in emerging markets.
